Possible key questions for reflection include: How does self-knowledge help teachers positively shape their professional lives? How does school culture shape the day-to-day life of teachers and how do you identify a school culture that is right for you? How does the current emphasis on standardized testing impact the life of a teacher and how can teachers positively respond to this? What does it mean to be a role model and what are the challenges and opportunities presented by this social role? What does community mean and how are teachers participants in and facilitators of positive community?
Exploration of these questions will occur through student centered, hands-on, and interactive classroom activities
Above class will include preparation for the CASA exam.
Registration for the CASA exam is included in this course at no additional cost to students

Bike races to ice plunges Campus traditions are as varied as the students who participate. So what makes a campus tradition? Come learn about how campus traditions, both sanctioned and unsanctioned, are developed. You will discover how college traditions can create a sense of community and belonging or, on the other hand, lead to exclusion or potential legal ramifications. As a class, we will explore the value of campus traditions on the student experience and the role of different institutional stakeholders play in upholding or disavowing certain tradition.

Above class will provide students with an overview of the educational status of Latinxs in the U.S. P-16 educational system. The course will specifically cover some of the issues that Latinxs have faced (and continue to face) in U.S. schools, including college access and retention, the fight for ethnic studies, the status of undocumented students, bilingual education, and institutional racism. This course will challenge the deficit-thinking mindset that often shapes discussions of minortized populations, focusing on how these communities and cultures greatly contribute to the educational system.

VT: STUDENT DEMANDS: ACTIVISM EDUC

Over the years, students have demanded a revised higher education curriculum by demanding the inclusion of diverse perspectives and voices, use of inclusive pedagogies, and requirement of diversity courses. In the 1960s, African American, Chicano, Asian American, and Native American student activists came together to demand a curricula and programs that reflected the histories, experiences, and needs of people of color (Lee, 2015). Even today over two-thirds of the student demands on TheDemands.org focus on an engaged and relevant curriculum (Chessman & Wayt, 2016). Using a variety of mediums, including readings and videos, this course will examine the ways student activism have and continue to play a key role in envisioning and demanding a more relevant education.

An introduction to college life and culture. This course includes guest lectures, campus tours, in-class discussions, and strategies for organization and study skills. You'll get involved on campus, visit with professors as well as academic and career advisors and, best of all, there will be many opportunities for multicultural dialogue and forming friendships in a small group. It's all the stuff you want to know about and do, inside and outside of the classroom, except with this class you get credit for it!

Above class meets on Wednesdays, time TBA, once every three weeks, starting the first week of classes.

This is a colloquium open to all interested music students held once every three weeks for three hours (with a break) by Profs. Andrew Mead (Music Theory) and Florence Sitruk (Harp) on the question "what is musical taste?"
We will discuss debates of the early 18th (Quantz, C.P.E. Bach and Mozart) and 19th Century (Wackenroder, Tieck) on the subject, as well as look closely at philosopher Jacques Derrida in the 20th century and his essays on political correctness. We will follow the question "does political correctness influence our judgment on taste?" All these are vital questions for musicians interpreting scores of composers. We will have guest speakers and expect a vivid round of discussions.

Above class meets on Wednesdays, time TBA, once every three weeks, starting the first week of classes.
This is a colloquium open to all interested music students held once every three weeks for three hours (with a break) by Profs. Andrew Mead (Music Theory) and Florence Sitruk (Harp) on the question "what is musical taste?"
We will discuss debates of the early 18th (Quantz, C.P.E. Bach and Mozart) and 19th Century (Wackenroder, Tieck) on the subject, as well as look closely at philosopher Jacques Derrida in the 20th century and his essays on political correctness. We will follow the question "does political correctness influence our judgment on taste?" All these are vital questions for musicians interpreting scores of composers. We will have guest speakers and expect a vivid round of discussions.
